Steven Jermaine Daggs Awarded $15,000 Counseling Fellowship From NBCC and Affiliates

Salisbury, MD—The NBCC Foundation, an affiliate of the National Board for Certified Counselors (NBCC), recently selected Steven Jermaine Daggs, of Salisbury, Maryland, for the NBCC Minority Fellowship Program-Addictions Counselors (MFP-AC). As an NBCC MFP-AC Fellow, Daggs will receive funding and training to support his education and facilitate his addictions counseling service to underserved minority populations.

The NBCC MFP-AC is made possible by a grant awarded to the NBCC Foundation in collaboration with the Association for Addiction Professionals (NAADAC) by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA). The Foundation administers the MFP-AC, including training and collaboration activities, such as webinars, that are open to all National Certified Counselors (NCCs). The goal of the program is to reduce health disparities and improve behavioral health care outcomes for racially and ethnically diverse populations by increasing the available number of culturally competent behavioral health professionals.

The NBCC Foundation MFP will distribute up to $15,000 to Daggs and the other 39 master's-level addictions counseling students selected to receive the fellowship award. Daggs is a graduate of Wor-Wic Community College, in Salisbury, Maryland, and is both a student and graduate of Grand Canyon University, in Phoenix, Arizona, where he is currently pursuing a master's degree in the mental health counseling program. Upon graduation, Daggs will serve underserved minority communities, including the LGBT community. He is aware of the multitude of obstacles minorities face when seeking treatment and finding appropriate care for their mental health and addiction, and he acknowledges that expanding his competency in professional counseling will provide him with a better understanding of what programs, services, and resources are needed for minority communities and the LGBT community. This fellowship will provide Daggs the opportunity to invest in the courses, materials, research, and resources required to further his education and achieve his academic and professional goals.

The NBCC Foundation has also awarded 20 $20,000 doctoral fellowships through the Minority Fellowship Program and 30 $10,000 master's-level fellowships through the MFP-Mental Health Counseling-Master's (MFP-MHC-M). The Foundation plans to open the next NBCC MFP-AC application period in fall 2019. To learn more about the NBCC MFP and its fellows, please visit <http://www.nbccf.org/Programs/Fellows>.
